The space presents
as a creative and dynamic workplace
while maintaining a professional and approachable feel.

The Zoo Group has always had a reputation for creativity, innovation and quality, but they wanted to add collaboration to the list.

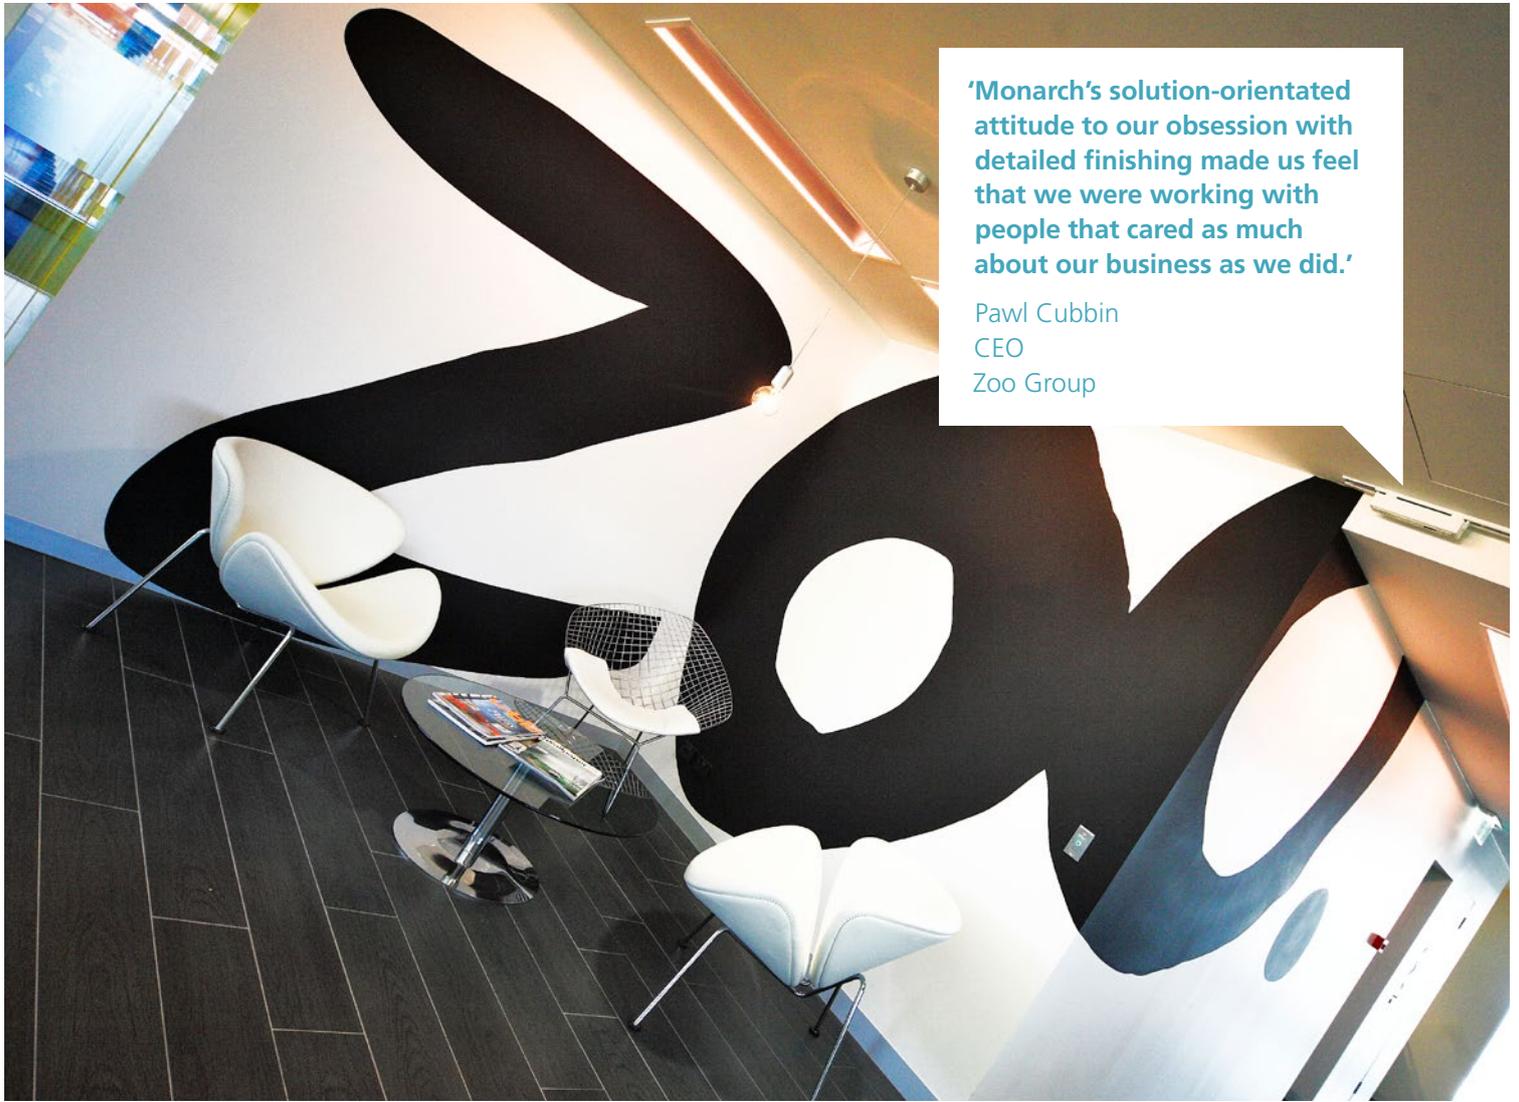

After making the decision to move into new premises they approached Archertec Interiors and Monarch to assist them in achieving their goal.

The new space was designed to provide a fresh approach and evolve their way of working. Every aspect of the new office, from the design of the workspaces to the open plan layout, was conceived to make collaboration easier. The space presents as a creative and dynamic workplace while maintaining a professional and approachable feel.

With the exception of the two boardrooms, two private meeting rooms and the bathrooms, the office is almost entirely open plan and offers commanding views over Wentworth Avenue. The resulting space was designed and constructed to make employees and clients feel at home from the moment they walk out of the lift and into the generous reception area. An open staff kitchen—sometimes informal meeting and entertaining space—overlooks the studio, which seamlessly flows from the reception into the production lounge and workspaces.

Collaborating in all aspects of the project Monarch Building Solutions and Archertec Interiors delivered an exceptional and award-winning fitout which introduced a fresh approach to the client's working environment.

'Monarch's solution-orientated attitude to our obsession with detailed finishing made us feel that we were working with people that cared as much about our business as we did.'
